

Writing an essay can be a daunting task. Our Academic Editing, Formatting and Proofreading service is just like having a teacher or lecturer mark your assignment before you've submitted it! If you have written an essay, report or paper and would like assistance and guidance in correcting your work before you submit it to your institution for marking, our Editing, Proofreading and Formatting services will help! The service is delivered at two levels, and price depends on how much time we have to assess your work (the more time we have the lower the price).

We have a great and professional team that handles our Academic Editing, Formatting and Proofreading services. Most pupils that have accessed these services show a substantial improvement in communicating their ideas and thoughts in their essay. Our team strives to connect the dots in your work to make an excellent essay. However, we never guarantee a particular mark or grade. Due to the large quantity of work we receive, especially during the end of Term/Semester, our work is carefully prioritised so that they meet their respective due dates. To maintain our high standards of quality, we do not accept work that has less than 12 hours before submission. We also try to account for time so that you can make our recommended changes to your work. When we are given less than 36 hours to correct a pupil's work, we need to call in a relevant educator for this specific occasion to ensure your work is handed back on time: for this reason the price reflects a substantially higher rate per 1000 words.
